Sun goin' down in late September
Brings a touch of autumn's glow
Distant fields lined with cotton
Is the closest thing we'll get to snow
Warm breeze blowin' slow and easy
Evenings on the front porch swing
Ooo, I guess it's just a southern thing

Go to church on Sunday morning
Stay for dinner on the grounds
Country ham and fried chicken
Just enough to go around
Baby sleeps beneath the shade trees
Old folks talk while children sing
Ooo, I guess it's just a southern thing

BRIDGE:

'Cause life is different down in Dixie
If you don't live there, you won't understand

There's family pride in old plantations
A hundred years and still the same
Pecan trees like rebel soldiers
Proudly guard the land they claim
Dogwood blooms and sweet magnolias
Decorate with grace each spring
Ooo, I guess it's just a southern thing
